CAD/Design/Drafting Scholarship Award Competition
2009-2010

National Judging Results

The NAWIC Education Foundation is pleased to announce the national winners of the 2009-2010 CAD Design Drafting Competition.

The NAWIC Education Foundation is a Texas-based, non-profit (IRS 501c3) corporation operating to provide and promote educational opportunities and programs to benefit the Construction industry throughout the United States. The competition provides recognition to students for creative design, successful problem solving, and craftsmanship in preparing architectural drawings and renderings. Drawings may be submitted in the category of "Hand Drafting" or the category of "CAD Drafting."

Entries were evaluated for detail, accuracy, and originality of work. Contestants are judged at the local level initially, and the local winner's entry in each category is submitted for Regional and National Competition. NEF is pleased to announce participation by all fourteen NAWIC Regions in the National Competition this year.

The 2009-2010 Design Problem was a small satellite library in a residential neighborhood that would not only serve the local families, but would be a meeting place for community activities. The design problem required that Universal Design be considered in all aspects. In addition, the students were instructed that the building be as energy efficient as possible, and were encouraged to use "green" building materials and alternate energy sources.
